ABSTRACT

This study investigated the mobility of undergraduate college students between Washington colleges and universities fall, 1971. Data were taken from Table 1 of the Higher Education Enrollment Projection (HEEP) model report forms. HEEP data reports transfers on a fall to fall basis whereas this study has recorded transfers on a spring to fall basis. Data indicated (1) in fall 1971, 10,973 undergraduate students transferred from one Washington college or university to another, a 1.1% decrease from fall 1970. (2) In fall 1971, 2,938 out-of-state or foreign undergraduate students transferred into Washington colleges and universities, a 9% decrease from 1970. (3) In fall 1971, 7.5% of the undergraduate population were transfers, a 2.5% decrease from 1970. (4) Students tend to transfer in their sophomore and junior years. Tables contain statistical data. January, 1973

We gratefully acknowledge the assistance and advice of Frederic T. Giles, Dean, College of Education, and Hugh Wiese, Director, Office of College Relations, University of Washington.

This project was supported by a comprehensive planning grant awarded under Title I of the Higher Education Facilities Act, as amended, from the Division of Academic Facilities of the U.S. Office of Education.

Early in the 1960s when the mobility of college students became a noticeable trend, attention was turned toward the transfer student and the transfer patterns created by these students. At that time the University of Washington, in conjunction with the Washington College Association and the Kellogg Foundation, began a series of studies which were carried out each fall to determine the number of undergraduate students who, at the beginning of the academic year, transferred between colleges and universities in the State of Washington.

The Council on Higher Education has agreed to continue this study as part of its enrollment and student activity information responsibilities. All historical data (1965 through 1970) appearing in this report have been provided by the previous studies completed by the University of Washington.*

Objectives of the Study

This study is conducted each fall and includes only those students who are new transfer students at the beginning of the academic year. The study is conducted to determine:

1. The total number of students who enroll in Washington colleges and universities each fall who were enrolled in a different institution the previous fall.
2. The total number of students who transferred from an institution located outside of the State of Washington.

*Giles, Frederic T. and Hugh Wiese, MOBILITY OF UNDERGRADUATE COLLEGE STUDENTS BETWEEN WASHINGTON COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES, AUTUMN 1970, Seattle, University of Washington, 1971.

3. The number of students who transferred between the different types of institutions of higher education in the State.
4. The number of transfers to each institution from other institutions.
5. The number of transfers from each institution to other institutions in the State.
6. A summarization of the emerging trends in the mobility of students.

Method of Study

The data for the 1971 mobility study were taken from Table 2 of the Higher Education Enrollment Projection (HEEP) model report forms. HEEP data reports transfers on a fall-to-fall basis whereas the University of Washington study has recorded transfers on a spring-to-fall basis. The differing time periods created concern regarding the previous historical survey established by the University of Washington series. A statistical check was run on the differing data series. It was determined that, with the exception of one institution, there was little difference between sets of data submitted through the 1970 HEEP series and the University of Washington reports regarding undergraduate transfers between Washington colleges and universities.

Present data requirements for HEEP aggregate the separate community colleges into districts. Figures for the Seattle community colleges are reported under Seattle Central, and both Spokane community colleges are reported under Spokane. The "out-of-state" category includes both out-of-state students and foreign transfer students. By agreement with the Population and Enrollment Section of the Office of Program Planning and Fiscal Management, future reports will maintain each element individually.

In utilizing the HEEP report forms it was possible for the first time to report the number of students transferring to an institution and the class in which they were enrolled after transferring. The additional information will provide data regarding the class level at which a student tends to transfer, i.e., as a freshman, sophomore, junior, etc. It will also provide information on the number of students by class who transferred to a particular institution as well as from which institution they transferred. These data are summarized in Table 4 of this report.

In-State Transfers

In Fall 1971, 10,973 undergraduate students transferred from one Washington college or university to another (Table 1). This figure represents 5.9 percent of the total undergraduate enrollment as compared to 11,090 in-state transfers in 1970, or 7.0 percent of the total undergraduate enrollment.

Out-of-State and Foreign Transfers

In comparing the number of students who were enrolled the previous term in an institution located outside of the State of Washington, a considerable decrease in the number of out-of-state transfer students in Fall 1970 and Fall 1971 is evident. In Fall 1970, 4,761 undergraduate students transferred into Washington colleges and universities--30 percent of all undergraduate transfers. In Fall 1971 this number decreased to 2,938--21 percent of all undergraduate transfers.

Total Undergraduate Transfers

Generally the number of students transferring has declined in the past year. In Fall 1970, transfer students comprised 10 percent of the undergraduate population (15,851); in Fall 1971, 7.5 percent of the undergraduate population were transfers (13,911). This phenomenon can be primarily attributed to the overall decline of out-of-state transfers.

Historical Data

Historical data by institution for all undergraduate transfers from 1965 through 1971 appears in Table 2. Comparing each year to the previous year results in considerable increases in the total number of transfer students from 1965 until 1970. A substantial decrease occurred in 1970; in 1971 there was a further decrease.

Table 3 provides data which makes apparent the increases and decreases in the number of transfers "to" and "from" the various segments of higher education. While it is expected that students will transfer from a two-year to a four-year college or university, a large number of students transfer from one community college to another. Generally, between 1965 and 1969 students were more likely to transfer than they were in 1970 and 1971.

Transfers by Class

A summary of the total number of students by class transferring to and from each institution in Fall 1971 appears on Table 4 together with the total number and the percent of transfers in the undergraduate population. The community colleges do not collect transfer data by class; transfers are reported under the headings "A&O" (Academic and Occupational) and "CS" (Community Service). It appears that students tend to transfer in their sophomore and junior years, probably after they decide on a major field of study.

Individual institutional information regarding the number of students who transfer by class level is not reported here as a part of the historical series on the mobility of undergraduate students. This is the first year the information has been available, however, this additional information will be provided to the individual institutions in a separate document.

Table 4 also reveals differences between institutions in the proportion of transfer students in the undergraduate population. In Fall 1971, transfer students comprised 45 percent of the student population of The Evergreen State College, newly opened. Transfer students comprise a greater proportion of the enrollment of state colleges as a group in both 1970 and 1971 than in any other type of institution.

Almost three times as many transfer students can be found in the undergraduate population of the four-year colleges and universities as in the two-year colleges (11.98 percent compared to 4.35 percent). The table on the top of the next page summarizes the various portions of the undergraduate population which the Fall 1971 transfer student represents in each segment of higher education.

Transfers Between Individual Institutions

The last section of the report includes a separate table for each of the institutions of higher education in the State of Washington. Each table provides data on the number of students who transfer to that institution from another institution in the State and from institutions outside the State; it also includes the number of transfers from that institution to all others within the State. This information is significant to those institutions which may wish to do in-depth studies regarding transfers.
